What's so special about handcrafted soap?

We have around 70 different varieties of handmade soaps and our range is constantly under revision with new products added regularly. We have soaps to suit even the most sensitive skin. All our soaps are very long lasting, produce an abundant creamy lather and leave skin feeling clean and fresh.

All of our soaps are crafted by hand. There is a large quantity of "vegetable or natural soaps" on the market today manufactured from a soap chip or noodle usually imported in large quantities.

All our ingredients are meticulously weighed and then hand blended using only a stick blender and a stainless steel ladle which we use to carefully blend the essential or fragrant oils.

The soap mixture is poured into wooden moulds and then left to go through the gel process and then allowed to cool and completely saponified before unmolding and then hand cutting.

We use coconut, palm, sunflower, rice bran, castor and soya bean oil in our base, the special blend of these oils have been extremely popular with 1000's of our valued customers around the globe.

In our hand crafted soap we use the cold process in which all our ingredients are mixed at a low temperature. This process retains all the natural goodness of the base oils and essential oils. In the saponification process large quantities of natural glycerine are produced.

Handmade soap does not strip your skin of its natural oils the way commercial products can. In hand-crafted, homemade soap the moisturizing glycerine remains in the soaps. Glycerine is removed from commercial soaps and they are then milled to produce a very hard, bar of soap. Hand-crafted soaps are not milled, nor is the glycerine removed. Try a bar of hand-crafted soap and test for yourself. Hand-crafted soap has to be experienced to be appreciated fully. Always feel free to contact us at the Speciality Soap Shoppe if you have any questions.
